EDITOR'S NOTE

Things Are Looking Better!

I've got to be honest with you, it's been a rough few months in the publishing industry battling with the United States Postal Service over nondeliveries. As we talked with several of you, we know the problem extended beyond just your magazine — you weren't getting your other mail either. It was a major, major backup. The good news is that we are now starting to see some improvements. I thank you for being so patient and giving the mail an extra couple of days before you call Tammi, Paul, Laura, Lori or myself.

In addition to the mail picking up, so is the entertainment world. Inside you'll find plenty of new series and original films to get excited about. Nat Geo's Genius: Aretha is a stunningly beautiful look at Queen of Soul Aretha Franklin's life. Please find time to watch this. I had a delightful conversation with Naomi Judd on her small role in Lifetime's V.C. Andrews Landry

Movie Series Event. What an inspiring lady she is. Laughed pretty hard talking with NBA star Blake Griffin on his prank show (those types of shows never get old to me). There's plenty more, so take a look inside.

Happy viewing!

What Happened To ...

I just received my February issue and again no listings for Long Lost Family, The Genetic Detective or Who Do You Think You Are? Are these three shows permanently off air or only temporarily? If temporarily, is it due to COVID-19? When can we expect to view these shows on air again? – James Here's some good news for you, James: "Who Do You Think You Are?" is expected to return to NBC sometime later this year, though dates have not been announced. As for "Long Lost Family" and "The Genetic Detective," neither of these shows is currently scheduled to return.

QUESTION OF THE MONTH:

Who would you like to see featured on Nat Geo's Genius series?

(See our feature on Genius: Aretha on page 18.)

"Yellowstone" Return?

I'm missing the Dutton family and wondering what happened to all of them at the end of last season. When does Yellowstone return for Season 4? – Jill

It has been reported that production on the fourth season of "Yellowstone" was completed last year. The show is expected to return to Paramount Network in June.

Kevin Costner returns for Season 4 of Yellowstone, expected to premiere on Paramount Network this summer Discovery Or discovery+? What Program Is On Where?

I am seeing a lot of ads for yet another streaming service, discovery+. What is this exactly, and what programs will be on it? – Ann

The new streaming service discovery+ is a partnership with Verizon and the Discovery brand. The service offers real-life, nonfiction and documentary programming in the areas of lifestyle, relationships, home, food, true crime, paranormal, adventure, natural history, science, tech and the environment. Some of the shows you were familiar with on Discovery, ID, Food, HGTV and TLC are transitioning to discovery+. Just like other streaming services (Netflix and Hulu), discovery+ can be found on a variety of platforms and devices. For more information, visit discoveryplus.com.

How Can A "Season" Be 10 Episodes Long?

I would like to know why Netflix believes it's OK to call 10 episodes of a show like Virgin River a "season" when clearly that's ridiculous?! – Unsigned

With the popularity of "binge-watching," many series are settling on 10- to 13-episode season runs as a digestible binge, with the idea that it will keep viewers coming back for another season.

Think back to "Game of Thrones" and "The Sopranos," as those series typically had 10- to 13-episode seasons. Many creative types have advocated reducing the number of episodes per season on certain shows, arguing that fewer episodes can mean better quality overall, and economically, it's easier to produce.

Congratulations!

Our January Reader Rewards winner of the Kitchen Herb Garden Kit from PBS' Finding Your Roots was Jamie Shultz.

The 63rd Grammys

After A Brief Delay, Music's Hottest Names Are Celebrated. By Taylor Neumann

The biggest night in music might have been delayed (it was originally scheduled for Jan. 31), but it's finally here. The 63rd Grammys are airing this year live on Sunday, March 14, on CBS, celebrating the best in music from late 2019 to 2020. The show will be hosted by The Daily Show's Trevor Noah and will of course feature epic performances – the roster wasn't available at presstime, but the night promises not to disappoint.

Beyoncé leads the nominations list this year with nine (making her the most nominated female in Grammys history), followed by Dua Lipa, Roddy Ricch and Taylor Swift with six each. Also in the mix are Brittany Howard, of Alabama Shakes fame, with five nominations, and Megan Thee Stallion, Billie Eilish, DaBaby, Phoebe Bridgers, Justin Bieber, John Beasley and David Frost, all tied with four apiece.

5 Questions

With ROWAN BLANCHARD
Of TNT's "Snowpiercer" By Ryan A. Berenz

Rowan Blanchard boarded TNT's Snowpiercer (Mondays) for Season 2 playing Alexandra, the formerly presumed-dead daughter of Melanie (Jennifer Connelly) and the current assistant to Mr. Wilford (Sean Bean). Alex's loyalties have been tested, and she's not going to stand for being used as a pawn.

"Wilford is using Alex and preying on the things that are the most vulnerable for her – like the fact that her mother left her," Blanchard says. "Very quickly, she starts recognizing the dissonances between what Mr. Wilford projects on Alex and what his real motivations are."

Known for her starring role on Disney's Girl Meets World, the 19-year-old Blanchard found it fun and exciting to play a darker role on Snowpiercer. There was even more fun and excitement to be had in answering our "5 Questions":

1 What's been your strangest or most interesting fan encounter?

A lot of people feel like they've watched me grow up – and that's because a lot of people have – and I think that's kind of a funny, interesting and weird bond to have with an audience. It just makes me feel really grateful. Growing up in this business can feel really scary, so anytime people make it feel like a fun thing to celebrate, it feels really special and sacred to me.

2 Can you tell us about a time you were starstruck?

One of the first times I was starstruck, I saw Angelina Jolie at a store in the Valley with my mom and my sister when I was like 7. And I just remember being freaked out and like my mind was blown. I'd been obsessed with actresses since I was really young.

3 What's a movie that you can watch over and over again?

Fargo. It's just such a fun winter movie. I saw it again recently and I was like, "I love this movie! It's so fun!"

4 What's your favorite sports team?

My dad is from New York, so we were raised only recognizing New York teams. But me, personally, I'll still ride for the Los Angeles Lakers. I'm from L.A. But my dad is like, "We're Knicks, Mets and Jets fans."

5 What's a job you had before acting?

I've been acting since I was 5. This is the only thing I know. I think I would be totally useless if I didn't have this to keep me occupied. It's definitely not the only thing I want to do: I would like to write and direct.

Take Time To Learn

Find Your Sport

- DraftKings offers contests in a wide variety of sports from professional leagues like MLB, NBA, NFL and NHL.

Have Fun

- Enjoy the games, use these contests to enhance the games you are watching and be responsible.

NAOMI JUDD GRACES LIFETIME

A Conversation With The Music Icon Who Reminds Us That Family Is Everything. By Barb Oates

Naomi Judd

In a remote part of Tennessee, Naomi Judd enjoys the beauty and privacy that the lush country hills offer. Living on a farm with her husband of 30-plus years (Larry Strickland, a gospel artist and former backup singer to Elvis), she has surrounded herself with the people she loves most. Behind her house and just over the hill is the second half of the Grammy Award-winning duo the Judds, daughter Wynonna. “She could get to me in about five minutes if she comes on her ATV,” Naomi tells. “And then Ashley [Naomi’s movie star and humanitarian youngest daughter] lives next door and it’s one minute from her house to my house. ... That’s the way I’ve always wanted it.” Adding to that girl power is another music great, Reba McEntire, who lives just around the bend.

In their parts there are no streets; there are just simple roads.

It’s a serene place for a music icon whose younger days were filled with harsh family secrets and unthinkable hardships, yet Naomi is a survivor, a woman who has overcome countless obstacles and today continues to inspire others through her music, books and speaking. On this particular day in January, we connect with Naomi to talk about her role in V.C. Andrews’ Ruby; it’s the first of four films that are part of Lifetime’s V.C. Andrews Landry Movie Series Event. The films follow Ruby Landry (Raechelle Banno), who, after being raised by her loving grandmother in the Louisiana bayou, is ensnared in a world of dark family secrets and betrayal when she discovers she has another family living in New Orleans.

“I find something in every character that they ask me to play,” Naomi says. “There’s got to be something.”

Naomi opens the four-film series starring as Ruby's Grandmère Catherine.

"My first words – because I'm a shaman, I'm the medicine woman in the Bayou area – may be the first scene of the film. I walk up to this shanty that has a dirt floor. There's a woman in agony, lying there, crying softly. She's holding a newborn baby, but it's dead, as the baby died at birth. So they had me come in to reduce the evil spirits in the room," she explains. "So when I walk in and I see her lying there on the ground, the floor, the first thing I do is holler [some foreign ritual language]."

The Landry book series – Ruby, Pearl in the Mist, All That Glitters and Hidden Jewel – is the second-highest-selling series from V.C. Andrews, and Lifetime's adaptation most likely will top ratings as did some of the other adaptations. Naomi, a bestselling author herself, wasn't familiar with this book series but was quick to get sucked into the storyline. "As we kept going along, I'd get totally caught up in it. ... In a way there were touchstones for me in the movie. And the fact that I'm a grandmother and I'm so protective."

The Landry story has it all – horrible family secrets, an evil twin, an evil stepmother, lies, betrayal and everything else that has made V.C. Andrews' stories so popular. Naomi said she did everything she could to stay in character and not be distracted by the typical adorations that graciously come her way while filming.

"My girlfriend Dolly Parton did a movie 9 to 5. I was talking to Dolly about making TV movies and everything, because the interesting thing is that when we're onstage, we're Dolly Parton or Naomi Judd or Wynonna Judd. But when making a movie this is fantasy, and we literally have to pluck our words out of whatever the heck is going on," Naomi laughs. "It was unusual to know that [the stars of this film, Raechelle and Karina Banno] were twins. I'm in every scene with Raechelle ... and that little squirt was so fun to work with. She was just delightful."

And speaking of delightful, the Judds recently reunited this past holiday and did a virtual concert. It was the first time they performed together in almost 15 years. So how is the duo's relationship these days? "We're really good," Naomi says. "She's the funniest person I know." Naomi says she's ready to perform more.

As for a much-needed updated biopic on the Judds or Naomi's life, she's not talking.

"I can't talk about anything, but there is something. And it's really hard for me not to spill the beans all the time, because my mom was the biggest gossip in our little town where I grew up and I swore I'd never be like her. I try, but it doesn't always work."

For now, be satisfied seeing the icon happy and healthy, and hope for more to come.

REFRAMED: Classic Films In The Rearview Mirror

How, With Proper Context, Older Movies With Problematic Themes Can Still Be Enjoyed As Classics. By Jeff Pfeiffer

Last summer, there was some outcry over the HBO Max streaming service airing the 1939 film Gone With the Wind. That movie, recognized as a classic for its acting and technical filmmaking achievement for over 80 years – and still the highest-grossing box-office film of all time when inflation is factored in – is also recognized now, when viewed through our modern sensibilities, as troublesome for its glorification of the antebellum South while ignoring the horrors of slavery, its racist depiction of slaves as loyal servants happy to serve their white masters and its tendency to use Black characters as bumbling comic relief.

After removing the film for a bit, HBO Max returned it with an added disclaimer at the start, in which a representative from Turner Classic Movies (TCM) discussed the problems the film presents for modern audiences in terms of its themes and characterizations, while also explaining why the film is still an important work in cinematic history and should continue to be viewed, even with certain caveats in mind.

Gone With the Wind is not the only older movie title that presents thematic challenges for 21st-century viewers. This month, TCM is airing several such films (including Gone With the Wind) that will be accompanied by introductions about the different cultural context in which they were made, and why they are still worth watching while keeping that context in mind. These films will air each Thursday evening under the thematic header Reframed: Classic Films in the Rearview Mirror.

"All of the films featured have stood the test of time," TCM told us about the titles aired as part of Reframed. "They are all legitimate classics that we proudly play on TCM that are loved by most classic movie fans. But when we watch them today, we're seeing them in a different cultural context and, often, we see potential problems now that we might not have seen when they were made."

Besides Gone With the Wind (airing March 4), other titles featured in Reframed will include Guess Who's Coming to Dinner (1967, March 11); Gunga Din (1939, March 11 late-night); The Jazz Singer (1927, March 11 late-night); Breakfast at Tiffany's (1961, March 18); The Searchers (1956, March 18); Psycho (1960, March 25 late-night); and many more.

"Sometimes we cringe a little at certain scenes," TCM further explained of these films, "but are able to appreciate the movie without too much disruption. Sometimes the themes make us uncomfortable, but the artistry of the filmmaking is so great that we can overlook them. Sometimes we learn more about where we were as a culture at the time the film was made, and that helps us better understand the way things are today. ... Many of the films that we play were legitimately groundbreaking and actually contributed to cultural breakthroughs.

"In no way do we want to tell people what they should think of these films or suggest they shouldn't enjoy them as much as ever. But there is a conversation happening in our culture that involves all forms of art, and we want to use these films as part of that dialogue."

TOON IN WITH ME

SATURDAY MORNING CARTOONS

MeTV Re-Creates The Glory Days Of Classic Kids TV — For Grownups. By Jeff Pfeiffer

If you're part of a certain generation, you likely remember growing up with plenty of classic cartoon-viewing options available when you were a kid — especially in the prime before-school, after-school and Saturday-morning blocks. These shows were often, especially in local markets, introduced by a host who was joined by his own wacky characters and puppets, offering fun and games in between cartoons.

Somewhere along the way, the heyday of classic cartoon programming on TV, and the memorable hosts who introduced it, largely came to an end. But MeTV has brought that back in a big way with the recent introduction of Toon in With Me, an hourlong weekday show featuring 'toons, and Saturday Morning Cartoons, a weekly three-hour program whose name is pretty self-explanatory.

“An Amazing Library Of Classic Cartoons”

Toon in With Me focuses on animated shorts from Bugs Bunny, Daffy Duck, Porky Pig, Road Runner and all the other beloved favorites from Warner Bros.’ classic Merrie Melodies and Looney Tunes franchises.

Saturday Morning Cartoons kicks off with an hour of Popeye and Pals, featuring the adventures of the famous sailor man and other characters from the Fleischer studio; continues with The Tom and Jerry Show, an hour block of ‘toons chronicling the eternal conflict between the titular cat and mouse, as well as other shorts from MGM; and concludes with the hourlong Bugs Bunny & Friends, devoted to Warner Bros. faves.

As impressive as this lineup of classic cartoons already is, the series’ host and “Cartoon Curator” Bill Leff promises even more animated greatness on the way.

“[MeTV has] already obtained an amazing library of classic cartoons – hundreds and hundreds and hundreds – but they’re always out to obtain more,” Leff says. “They’re working on deals. I keep hearing stories about other things, other properties that they’re going to throw into the roster. There’s some big names now, but there’s some bigger names ahead. Neal Sabin, the man who is behind the network at MeTV, is such a fan of animation. He really wants to make everybody happy with the choices.”

As host of these series, the Chicago-born Leff is not only introducing the ‘toons, but also channeling some of the lovingly remembered kids TV hosts he grew up with in the Windy City, like Ray Rayner. And with the amusing games, sketches, interviews, special guests and more that he brings between cartoons, he’ll probably remind you of whatever host you might fondly recall having grown up watching, wherever it is you hail from.

“I always say this, and people think I’m kidding, but I’m not,” says Leff. “I was late for school every day in grade school because Ray Rayner was on, and I wanted to see the cartoons. I wanted to see Ray play with Chelveston the Duck. I don’t think I was on time for class once during my whole career. Then in Chicago, we also had a guy named Bill Jackson who had a show called Cartoon Town. So, as soon as school was over, we’d all run home and watch that.

“Those were like friends to us. They were just old, familiar memories. ... [The] best part is hearing from people who say, ‘You know, I hadn’t seen this Tom and Jerry in 35 or 40 years,’ or, ‘I hadn’t seen this Daffy Duck in 30 years.’ It brings you back to a time that was just magic for people.”

“A Time Machine To A Simpler, Happier Time”

Leff’s wistful description of this “magic” time for kids from decades past will strike right at a nostalgic sweet spot for many older viewers, and that’s by design, given the audience that MeTV says it is aiming for with these shows. While the ‘toons can certainly be enjoyed by all ages, the concept, format and presentation of the programs are primarily geared toward the hearts of the network’s main demographic, which is baby boomers and roughly anyone within the 35-64 age range, which also envelops Gen Xers and older millennials.

“The twist on it is this is the kind of format that boomers all watched as kids, and it’s as if [this is a] show [that] aged with them in terms of the content,” a MeTV rep described it to us.

“We know that the heart of our viewers are people who experienced these types of shows when they were kids,” Leff agrees. “MeTV has found this time machine to transport you back to a simpler, happier time on a Saturday morning, where you can just watch these great animation bits.

“Saturday mornings [used to be] the best time of the week. It was just magic. All three networks [at the time] ... were running three hours or sometimes a four-hour block of animation and kids shows. I can’t tell you how many conversations I’ve had with people where they say, ‘Why doesn’t that exist anymore?’ When you turn on one of the networks on a Saturday morning [now], you’re getting Meet the Press-type shows. Nothing wrong with those, but they’re not as funny as a cat and a mouse chasing each other with a pan.

“I think this is a nice return to a magical time that so many of us shared, and a kid today should also have access to that.”

Leff continues to receive feedback from grateful older fans who are really getting into the nostalgic spirit of these series.

“One of my best friends said, and I quote, ‘I put on my pajamas.

I pour myself a bowl of cereal. I make some chocolate milk, and I’m 11 years old again.’

“How about that? That’s the best.”

genius Aretha

Cynthia Erivo Embodies The Queen Of Soul In Nat Geo's Anthology.

By Ryan A. Berenz

After exploring Albert Einstein and Pablo Picasso in its first two installments, National Geographic's Genius series presents the transcendent life, career and music of Aretha Franklin over a four-night, eight-episode third season.

Franklin sang gospel songs in her father's church in Detroit in the 1950s, then blossomed into a pop singer in the 1960s. By the end of the decade, she was crowned "Queen of Soul," and she would go on to leave an indelible legacy as performer, pioneer, activist and icon.

"Aretha had such an amazing and long career. She lived a beautiful life that was full of peaks and valleys that led to her incredible success," says Aretha

Genius: Aretha. Credit: National Geographic/Wesley Kistner

The Queen's Subjects

It's Aretha's world. These people are just living in it:

Ted White (Malcolm Barrett) Aretha's first husband and business manager.

showrunner Suzan-Lori Parks. “So many things that she went through – the highs, the lows – would have crushed a lesser being, in my opinion.”

Aretha was larger than life, and it requires an extraordinary talent to portray her. The honor of that challenge goes to Cynthia Erivo, a Grammy, Emmy and Tony winner and Oscar nominee (Harriet).

“I love Aretha. I’ve been listening to her since I was little. I learned to sing and tell stories through song, by listening to her,” Erivo says. “I approached playing Aretha by listening to her music, paying attention to her voice, and honing in on how she communicates with her music. ... I’ve also been poring over her interviews to learn her cadence and the ways in which she spoke. I’ve really enjoyed learning about Aretha as a person as well as her music. I allowed myself to be a geek about someone and something I really love – that’s how I’ve been getting to know her.”

“Just Cynthia being such a talented artist, a talented actor, it’s been nothing but fun to watch her really embody this character,” says executive producer and director Anthony Hemingway. “And if you close your eyes and just listen to her sing, you are questioning, ‘Is Aretha in that booth, or is it Cynthia Erivo?’”

But that’s the beauty in what I love seeing a real actor do. They step out of themselves and really step into the shoes of the character that they are portraying. And Cynthia is doing that.”

Guiding Aretha’s genius was her father, the reverend and civil rights activist C.L. Franklin. His “Million Dollar Voice” could be heard delivering powerful sermons on the radio, on recordings and on national ministry tours. He nurtured Aretha’s talent through what was sometimes a difficult home life and the discrimination she faced as a young Black woman.

“If you close your eyes and just listen to her sing, you are questioning, ‘Is Aretha in that booth, or is it Cynthia Erivo?’” — Anthony Hemingway

Emmy winner Courtney B. Vance (The People v. O.J. Simpson: American Crime Story), who plays Aretha’s father, believes the family was able to overcome by trusting in that powerful force that buoyed them: the music. “The thing that’s constant is the music,” Vance says. “The church music, the fact that during this time period folks from the church were crossing over and going into the pop world and how difficult and fraught with dangers that was for folk. And how ‘Re Re’ had to navigate all of that, and then Papa had to navigate that with her. There were no rules back then, especially for folks of color. There was no rule. We were operating the best we could. And based on that, this young lady – with all that she had against us, against her, against the odds – she rose to become the genius that she was.”

MEN IN KILTS: A ROADTRIP WITH SAM AND GRAHAM

Catching Up With The “Outlander” Lads. By Barb Oates, Additional Reporting By Kate Hahn

Imagine the pitch meeting. Two fun-loving superstars from your biggest hit series – Outlander – tell you about a project they developed, where they travel around in a camper van, engaged in witty banter, while exploring the scenery, culture, cuisine and people that make Scotland amazing. The meeting took all of about 30 minutes. For Sam Heughan and Graham McTavish (Heughan plays 18th-century Highlander Jamie Fraser; McTavish was his now-dear-departed uncle, Dougal MacKenzie), their adventures are chronicled in Men in Kilts: A Roadtrip With Sam and Graham. Here the lads share some highlights.

So how did Sam get to be the designated driver for this?

Graham McTavish: That was really the result of a night before with Duncan Lacroix [he plays Murtagh Fraser], staying out far too late, feeling wretched, literally feeling wretched in the car park. As I walked toward the van. And we had never discussed who was going to drive. And I just said, well, why don't you drive? And I didn't realize until too late that Sam had never driven a camper van before.

Sam Heughan: I wouldn't let him do any driving because I wanted to do it because I enjoy it. However, as soon as I got into the camper van, I realized, “Oh, I've actually never driven one of these before” or driven manual for a number of years. So it was trial by fire.

One of your episodes covers Scotland's superstitions — tell us about that.

Graham: I'm very superstitious about being in graveyards with Sam Heughan, that's for sure, as a result of that episode. He did his very best to terrify me.

What do you hope viewers walk away with after viewing?

Sam: I hope people feel that they can go on their own road trips and adventures, and Scotland is certainly a place that's made for that. You can literally go out the door and go up the road and you're already there. You go past ruined castles or battlefields or lochs or mountains, and there's so much history just there. I know other countries have theirs, but there's something about Scotland – it's very tangible. You can feel it, and hopefully it'll inspire other people to go on their own road trips. And obviously you need to find a willing companion.

Where is Outlander headed in Season 6?

Sam: The whole family is facing uncertainty, including the possibility of a fire at [their home], Fraser's Ridge.

KENAN

Don Johnson On The “Amazing Chemistry” He’s Found As Part Of NBC’s Sweetly Funny New Sitcom. By Jeff Pfeiffer

Don Johnson

Kenan
NBC,
Tuesdays

While Don Johnson has largely headlined and supported dramatic projects throughout his long career – notably in TV series like Miami Vice and Nash Bridges, and in films like Harley Davidson and the Marlboro Man and Django Unchained – viewers could see, even in those mostly serious characters, flashes of a wry, tongue-in-cheek comedic sensibility that the actor brought.

In NBC’s new sitcom Kenan, which debuted last month, Johnson has found a regular role that lets him cut loose with a mostly comedic performance that he also balances with subtle bits of emotion.

That delightful combo of humor and heart is true of this series as a whole. Johnson plays Rick, father-in-law to Kenan (Saturday Night Live’s Kenan Thompson, who is also an executive producer), an Atlanta morning TV host who is still mourning his late wife, Rick’s daughter Cori (portrayed in flashbacks by Niccole Thurman), while trying to raise their two young girls. All the while, others – particularly Rick, a former “gallivanting sax player” who missed out on much of raising his own daughter and now tries to make up for it with his granddaughters – are trying to give Kenan advice that isn’t necessarily wanted at first.

It’s clear right from Johnson’s first appearance as Rick that he is really enjoying being part of this talented ensemble. And the actor confirmed that when we spoke with him.

“I have to tell you, it’s fun!” Johnson said. “[Executive producer] Lorne Michaels is an old friend of mine, and we’ve always wanted to do something together. He offered me this role, and I looked at it and thought it might be fun.

“[And Rick has] been a blast to play; he could not be more different than me, in that [he] is happily clueless to just about everything in the world. He’s definitely a horn player, because every horn player I’ve ever known is kooky and wacky and funny and fun, but they definitely dance to a different drummer, to stay on the musical metaphor thing.”

Johnson continued that musical metaphor when he spoke about the seemingly effortless chemistry between him and the rest of the cast, which also includes Thompson’s SNL castmate Chris Redd as Kenan’s brother Gary, Kimrie Lewis as his boss Mika, and Dani and Dannah Lane as his daughters Aubrey and Birdie.

“[This is] like being part of a jazz band,”

Johnson described his Kenan experience.

“We are all part of this fabulous ensemble, and every now and then one of us pops up and has a solo, and then it’s fantastic.

“It’s just kind of amazing ... [this] chemistry. Kenan and I seem like we have been father-in-law and son-in-law for 10, 15 years. ... When you have great writing and actors to work with, they make you look good.”

DOUBLE CROSS WITH BLAKE GRIFFIN

The NBA Star Takes Aim At Pranksters In Hilarious New Hidden Camera Series. By Barb Oates

Detroit Pistons' Blake Griffin

There's nothing better than fooling a prankster. Watching their anxiety levels rise, their panicked expressions when they think something is going horribly awry, yet knowing you're finally giving them a dose of their own medicine, is priceless. NBA superstar Blake Griffin appreciates a good prank, as he's had a long history of pranking friends and loving prank shows, so it's a natural fit that he leads TV's newest laughter Double Cross With Blake Griffin.

"We just found everyday people," Griffin shares. "We're giving these people, who are sort of tired of being the victim of being pranked, revenge on their prankster. We've all seen the prank shows. But being able to do this and have both people sort of be in on it [the prankster and the person being pranked] allows you to capture a lot more content. There can be more cameras placed because both people know that there's going to be cameras. So I think it gave us an advantage to really capture these pranks and get footage that you've probably never seen before in prank shows."

Griffin, who's been pulling pranks pretty much his whole life, laughs remembering one that he pulled off with a college teammate. "We went into our locker room and switched everything in everybody's locker to the opposite side, like kind of a mirror image of the locker. We took all their stuff out, put it all on the other side of everybody's locker, just like how the original locker was, but put everything on the other side. So when everybody came in from practice, they were so confused." Now, he says, his pranks are far more elaborate and involve plenty more work to pull off.

At the end of any prank, however, is a good laugh. And that's exactly what we all need more of.

Tim Allen And Richard Karn Reunite For A Tool-Savvy Competition Series. By Barb Oates

It's been 30 years since Tim Allen and Richard Karn first debuted as Tim and Al on the long-running ABC comedy series Home Improvement, but the Tool Time buddies are back at it again serving as hosts and executive producers of the new 10-episode competition series Assembly Required.

"They say a longtime friend is someone who responds with, 'This is by far your worst idea ever.' ... Fortunately, this was a great idea working with Richard," said Allen. "I loved those days doing Tool Time. We both share a great appreciation for people who can solve a problem not by talking about it, but by doing it with creativity and amazing building skills. Plus it gives me more time to make fun of his fake beard."

Joining them is a resident expert – woodworking do-it-yourself YouTube star April Wilkerson – where they will challenge brilliant makers (fabricators, tradesmen/women, jacks of all trades, etc.) to create some insane builds.

Each episode will follow three amazingly talented makers, from their own home shops, as they compete in a first-round competition that has them creating things like a fire extinguisher, water fountain, treadmill and/or handheld vacuum. Each maker is shipped a mystery crate of items and they have 90 minutes to build the challenge using any or all of the items they were shipped, as well as their own tools. They are judged on quality, design and functionality. Allen and Karn monitor their progress virtually from their garage set, adding their much-loved commentary along the way. The two makers with the most effective builds move on to the final competition, and they have five days to construct a more complicated item, like a dual all-season ice melter/leaf blower. Their builds are shipped back to Allen and Karn, where they will ultimately determine who takes home $5,000 in cash.

Let's just say this is a lot harder than it looks, and that's what makes it fun.

The Sky Is Falling!

DEBRIS

A Spaceship Wreck Wreaks Havoc On Earthlings.

By Ryan A. Berenz

We are not alone, and the proof is scattered all over the Western Hemisphere.

In the sci-fi thriller Debris, bits and pieces of wreckage from an alien spacecraft have fallen to Earth. But these fragments aren't just space junk, and you definitely don't want them for souvenirs. Even the smallest "nacho" shard has physics-defying powers and unpredictable effects on anyone making contact with it.

The U.S. and the U.K. have joined forces in a coalition called ORBITAL to collect the debris, conduct scientific research on it, investigate human interactions with it and prevent it from falling into the wrong hands. The CIA's Bryan Beneventi (Jonathan Tucker) and MI6's Finola Jones (Riann Steele) are teammates with two vastly different approaches to their work.

Fascinating Look At How Animal Extinctions Also Have Human Consequences.

Sir David Attenborough

As he did in last year's related special Climate Change: The Facts, renowned natural historian Sir David Attenborough hosts and introduces various topics in the similarly fascinating, moving and alarming hourlong program Extinction: The Facts, which breaks down the threats of extinction that a million species around the world are facing.

As the special shows, those threats are not coming from beyond, like the infamous asteroid collision that triggered the extinction-level event that wiped out the dinosaurs. "Today, we are the asteroid," warns biologist Elizabeth Hadly, one of the many experts in the special trying to offer a wake-up call to how these extinctions resulting from human activities also endanger our own species with a chain reaction of consequences including the explosion of more COVID-like pandemic diseases.

Extinction shows once again why the British are top of the class when it comes to natural history programs like this. There is the usual compelling expert commentary and stunning (and sometimes depressing) imagery from around the world, including a heartbreaking visit

Jones' recently deceased father was the astrophysicist who founded ORBITAL, and she feels a sense of duty to carry on his work. "I believe this technology, if understood properly, can end famine, cure sickness," Jones says in the Debris pilot. "I think what we're doing here will absolutely change the course of humanity."

Beneventi, who has recently returned from a tour of duty in Afghanistan, is more concerned about preventing smugglers from selling debris to adversarial nations or terrorist groups. "My character is going through a rather profound PTSD ride and trying to compartmentalize that, and then also use it to connect to people and to the experiences that he's having here," Tucker says.

Elizabeth Vargas

The original America's Most Wanted was a cultural touchstone, running from 1988 to 2011 on FOX and hosted by John Walsh. The series is responsible for catching over 1,000 criminals and bringing them to justice. So it's no surprise that FOX is bringing back America's Most Wanted, this time hosted by Elizabeth Vargas. Here we talk with Vargas about the reboot.

What makes this new version of the show different from the original?

Elizabeth Vargas: Well, just the technological advances that have happened since the show went off the air 10 years ago are astonishing. People are able, via social media, with cellphones, to access and communicate in ways that they couldn't 10 years ago. I mean, it's actually kind of amazing what people are able to do. And this is a show – I mean, listen, I have a long history of doing a lot of crime reporting and in-depth investigations and documentaries and that sort of thing. The fact that this show takes the added enormous step of also empowering the audience to help bring justice for the victims of these crimes is a real extraordinary thing. And the fact that we're going to be able to use technology, whether it's 3D technology or green screens or avatars, and that people can pull up on their phones anything and everything, empowers the audience all the more. I'm really excited to be part of this relaunch of the show.

What makes this a good time to bring the show back?

I think the fact that we have made such incredible advances in what we could do technologically makes this show intriguing. Listen, this show has a storied history for FOX TV. It ran for 25 years. It was an enormous hit. People loved the show because they loved the fact that it gave you the added power, the added bonus, if you put it, of being able to actually do something about these crimes. We know that there are whole cable networks dedicated to nothing except crime stories. There is an insatiable appetite for it. But this show takes it one step further. It's not just watching a story that is unbelievable and sometimes tragic and sometimes very disturbing. This show takes you a step further, in that we are enlisting our audience members to help us, to help law enforcement, to help the FBI, the U.S. Marshals be able to catch this person and finally bring justice to a case and to some survivors who are desperately in need of it.

How do you source your featured cases?

We're working constantly with the FBI, with the U.S. Marshals' office for people who've been fugitives. We didn't want to do just one particular case or in one particular area. They span the country. They involve everything from murder to terrorism to kidnapping. ... And we're working very closely also with Interpol on this, which is also new from the show last time, so we have that added tool as well.

March Madness Gets Contained Within A Hoosier State Bubble.

NCAA Tournament Schedule

- Selection Sunday March 14 (CBS)
- First Four March 18 (truTV & TBS)
- First Round March 19-20 (CBS, TBS, TNT & truTV)
- Second Round March 21-22 (CBS, TBS, TNT & truTV)
- Regionals March 27-30 (CBS & TBS)
- Final Four April 3 (CBS)
- Championship Game April 5 (CBS)

The COVID-19 pandemic forced the cancellation of the 2020 NCAA Men's Basketball Tournament. March Madness returns this year, albeit with a host of changes intended to mitigate the coronavirus threat.

The entire tournament will be played in the state of Indiana, with Indianapolis hosting games in Lucas Oil Stadium, Bankers Life Fieldhouse, Hinkle Fieldhouse and Indiana Farmers Coliseum. Additional games are played at Mackey Arena in West Lafayette and Simon Skjodt Assembly Hall in Bloomington. Players and team personnel will be physically distanced in housing, meals, meetings, transportation and practices. The NBA had success last fall with its playoff bubble in Orlando, Florida, but the NCAA will have a logistical challenge accommodating 68 teams in a relatively short time.

The tournament schedule is also slightly adjusted this year. The field is announced on CBS March 14, and play begins Thursday, March 18, with the First Four on truTV and TBS. The first and second rounds are played from Friday, March 19, through Monday, March 22. All 67 tournament games will again be nationally televised across CBS, TBS, TNT and truTV, and stream on NCAA March Madness Live.

Top squads in the hunt for a No. 1 seed include Gonzaga, Baylor, Villanova, Michigan, Texas, Houston, Iowa and Virginia. It's been a rough season for traditional powerhouse programs like Duke, North Carolina and Kentucky, who won't be much – if any – of a factor in the big dance.

CRITIC PICK OF THE MONTH

Make It A Movie Night!

Carey Mulligan is brilliant in the lead role as a woman who is coping with life after an event that is slowly revealed. We are forced to cheer and boo the same character through a number of her decisions. I was brought to the edge of my seat in pure terror at one moment and gasping for air the next. Writer/director Emerald Fennell delivers a film that is uncompromising, uncomfortable and unorthodox, but also unbelievably satisfying and makes for a conversation-worthy movie night.

It's my pick of the month.

Paul Hall is a nationally syndicated film critic and member of the Critics Choice Association (CCA)

Make It A Movie Night! This politically charged human rights film fits our time.

ACROSS & DOWN By Donna Pettman

DIRECTIONS

Rearrange the letters in each group to form a word. Place the words into the diagram so that the same words read both across and down. (The first word across is the same as the first word down and so on.) The letter groups are not necessarily placed next to the row of the diagram in which they go.
