Audiences were heartbroken in Season 3 of Meerkat Manor (2007) when Flower's life came to a shocking end. The drama, love and compassion viewers felt following a family of meerkats was remarkable. Now a new tale awaits with Meerkat Manor: Rise of the Dynasty.

EDITOR'S NOTE

Welcome, Summer!

In the TV world, nothing signifies the start of the summer more than seeing the broadcast network lineups fill up with returning and new game shows. Remember Jim Lange's The Dating Game that aired in the mid '60s and early '70s (or its several revivals over the years)? Well, it's back, and again on ABC, but this time as The Celebrity Dating Game with Michael Bolton and New Girl's Zooey Deschanel at the helm as hosts, and celebrities in the matchmaking seat looking for a potential suitor. Before we talked with Bolton about the reboot (page 16), it was interesting to look back at the original series and learn that stars like Farrah Fawcett, Lindsay Wagner, Tom Selleck, Burt Reynolds, Steve Martin and several others all appeared on the original show before they were famous. Inside we list out some of the top returning game shows, and also share our interview with the always-charming Rob Lowe (page 24).

This month Lifetime kicks off its first annual Summer of Secrets, with six new original movies inspired by true-crime stories. The net also introduces the six-episode documentary series Cellmate Secrets narrated by Rizzoli & Isles' Angie Harmon. The series revisits some of the most high-profile cases (Casey Anthony, Drew Peterson), revealing new insights and information.

Inside there's plenty more to keep you entertained and/or inspired, from IMPACT With Gal Gadot and Meerkat Manor: Rise of the Dynasty to the Westminster Kennel Club Dog Show and more.

Happy viewing!

Netflix Schedule Is Annoying

One thing Netflix doesn't do a good job of is telling people when their popular series are returning. For example, when I look up shows like Ozark and Bridgerton it just says something vague like "it's official, another season is coming." Well, when? – Jill

"Ozark" is returning for a fourth and final season, and will be divided into two parts. Originally we thought the first part would drop in late 2021 and the second in 2022 spring or fall. Netflix's last earnings report didn't list "Ozark" among its most anticipated projects of 2021, so we're thinking this may not see our screens until 2022. "Bridgerton" just finished casting, so I doubt we will see anything this year. In the meantime, if you haven't caught up on these top performers from the first quarter, check them out.

Top Series (2021, Qtr. 1)

QUESTION OF THE MONTH:

Who's the most famous person you have ever met?

Email us at dishletters@ntvbmedia.com

The Oscars Were A Flop

I know you had asked a question about who we wanted to win the Oscars, and

I couldn't come up with any movie titles because we didn't go to theaters this past year. I think it was a bad idea to even have the Oscar ceremony with so many people not having access to so many of the films that were nominated. – Debbie

I absolutely hated it! It felt really disjointed, very slow, boring. It seemed they tried to make it more geared toward a younger audience. It didn't have the glamorous prestige it usually does. I get it's during a pandemic so they needed to take precautions, but it was so dull. – Karen

The way-too-fast pace of the In Memoriam segment was dizzying and didn't allow viewers to take a moment to remember those who were lost. The lack of movie clips in the first half of the show dulled the excitement for the movies being celebrated. – PJ

Editor's Note:

The 93rd Annual Academy Awards recorded a historic low in viewership with only 10.4 million viewers, a steep, steep fall from last year's 23.6 million viewers, which was also a record low.

Congratulations!

Our April Reader Rewards winner of a Wizard of Paws cuddly plush dog and bandanna was Ilene Rattiner.

Hype

Wanna Go Outside?!

This Year, Westminster Lets The Dogs Out. By Jeff Pfeiffer

Due to the pandemic, this year's installment of the famous Westminster Kennel Club Dog Show – traditionally held in February inside Madison Square Garden – moves to a new month and to a new, outdoor location: Lyndhurst, a property of the National Trust for Historic Preservation in Tarrytown, New York.

This marks the first time that this storied event has been held outside, but that shouldn't be a problem – least of all for the doggos (unless they keep wanting to go inside, then out again, then back in ...). Among the pooches featured in this 145th installment of what is the second-longest continuously run American sporting event after the Kentucky Derby are first-time entrants from four breeds recently recognized by the American Kennel Club: the barbet (Sporting group), Belgian Laekenois (Herding), Biewer terrier (Toy) and dogo Argentino (Working).

On Saturday, June 12, the first evening of group judging airs live on FS1 and features the Hound, Toy, Non-Sporting and Herding groups. The Sporting, Working and Terrier groups, as well as Best in Show, will be judged Sunday night (June 13) live on FOX. Pre-show programming will kick off both evenings.

Earlier in the afternoons of both days, you can watch select live coverage of Breed Judging and Junior Showmanship Preliminaries, while on Saturday, FOX will also air the finals of the Masters Agility Championship, one of the highlights of Westminster weekend, featuring the best agility dogs around competing for barking rights.

America's Funniest Home Videos: ANIMAL EDITION

The popular, long-running series America's Funniest Home Videos has often featured humorous video submissions starring pets and other animals, mixed in among clips of toddlers saying outrageous things or dads taking footballs to the groin. But in Nat Geo Wild's new spinoff, America's Funniest Home Videos: Animal Edition (premiering June 11), hosted by Alfonso Ribeiro, animal lovers won't have to sit through boring human videos to get to the stuff they really want – this series, befitting its home channel, is all about hilarious and cute critter content.

5 Questions

With AARÓN SÁNCHEZ
Of FOX's "MasterChef" By Taylor Neumann

MasterChef is returning for its 11th season Wednesdays beginning June 2, and the show is going all out to celebrate. This year is the season of legends, where each episode will bring a dynamo of gastronomy to join the judges – Gordon Ramsay, Joe Bastianich and Aarón Sánchez – shaking up the competition for those home chefs. Those legends include chefs Masaharu Morimoto, Jonathan Waxman, Paula Deen and, in the premiere episode, Emeril Lagasse, as well as many more. We caught up with judge Sánchez to ask him some culinary-themed questions.

1 After 11 seasons, is there anything that surprises you that contestants still do wrong?

One of the biggest things is the lack of tasting the food – the lack of seasoning. ... Sometimes you have to be able to pivot. You have to adapt. You have to overcome under the circumstances. So sometimes I'm very surprised that the basics are forgotten.

2 As a chef, what is your favorite ingredient to work with?

For me, chiles, obviously. I just think fresh, dry – yes, it speaks to my kind of cuisine, but I just love [them]. ... And then, you know, when you're talking about chefs, we talk about acid all the time, right? Something that really wakes up the dish, whether it's some bracing vinegar, or some beautiful, fresh citrus, those are the kind of things that really speak to me.

3 If you could have a cooking show with another chef, who would you choose as your partner?

Maybe my mom? ... My mom had a restaurant for 30 years in New York City. She's considered one of the pioneers in Mexican regional food. And that's why Joe and I really connect so much, because his mom is Lidia Bastianich. We both grew up in New York City, so we had that same sort of upbringing, of having these very strong moms who are chefs that are just unbelievable cooks.

4 What do you like to cook at home?

I love food from Spain. I love Spanish [flavors]; I love the simplicity of having, you know, four ingredients on a dish and have it just sing. And then as far as bigger flavors, I love Southeast Asia. I live in New Orleans where we have one of the hugest Vietnamese communities in the United States. And I love that food. I love the fish sauce, the acid, fresh herbs, the noodles, the pho.

5 It's late at night and you're hungry. What are you eating?

In my house, we always have tortillas, and we always have really good cheese, and I always have to have some sort of pickled vegetables in my house. And kimchi, I love kimchi. So my late-night go-to is a kimchi quesadilla, and that makes me happy.

IN THE WORKS

By Taylor Neumann

NEW NCIS

If you're a fan of NCIS and its various spinoffs, then you'll be happy to hear that another offshoot is joining the family this fall. The franchise is adding ① *NCIS: Hawaii to the family, even as NCIS: New Orleans wrapped up last month. Hawaii will mark the first installment of the series with a female lead, following the first woman in the role of special agent in charge of NCIS Pearl Harbor and her team. Another change from the formula is that the new series will not be introduced via a backdoor pilot in one of the other shows.

STRAIGHT TO SERIES ... BUT NOT ALWAYS

NBC has given a straight-to-series order to Law and Order: For the Defense, a new offshoot of the venerable franchise. Creator Dick Wolf is working with Carol Mendelsohn, who headed up CSI, on the series. It will take a look inside a criminal defense firm and examine the lawyers who argue on behalf of the public. ... In an update to a series previously mentioned in this column, the ABC pilot (which was still unnamed) starring ② Alec Baldwin and *Kelsey

Grammer as unusual roommates has been dumped by the network, despite originally receiving a straight-to-series order. Networks don't usually bail on these agreements, but reportedly, after viewing the produced pilot, ABC was no longer interested. The show will be shopped around, and with those big names, you never know where it could end up, but as of right now the show isn't going forward.

IN OTHER NEWS

NBC is developing a game show based off of the board game ③ *Guess Who? It's been in the works since 2019 and only just landed at NBC. In each episode, contestants will use their intuition to make snap judgments. The series may come with its own built-in audience, if game sales are anything to go by – Hasbro states that an average of 2 million boards are sold annually around the world. ... The ABC drama pilot Promised Land has booked a director – Michael Cuesta, who will also executive produce. He's been a part of many popular shows, including Elementary, Homeland and Dexter. The series will be an epic drama spanning multiple generations of two Latinx families living and working in the Sonoma Valley wine country.

FROM ACROSS THE POND

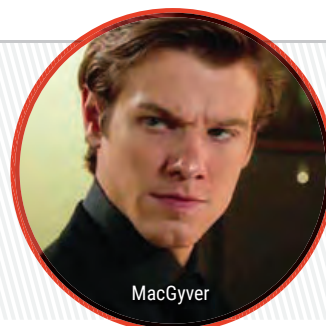

AMC recently announced a new crime drama, ④ *Ragdoll, which started filming in April in London. The six-part series is based on the novel by Daniel Cole and centers on the murders of six people who have been dismembered and sewn into one large body, called the "Ragdoll." The three leads for the show are Henry Lloyd-Hughes, Thalissa Teixeira and Lucy Hale.

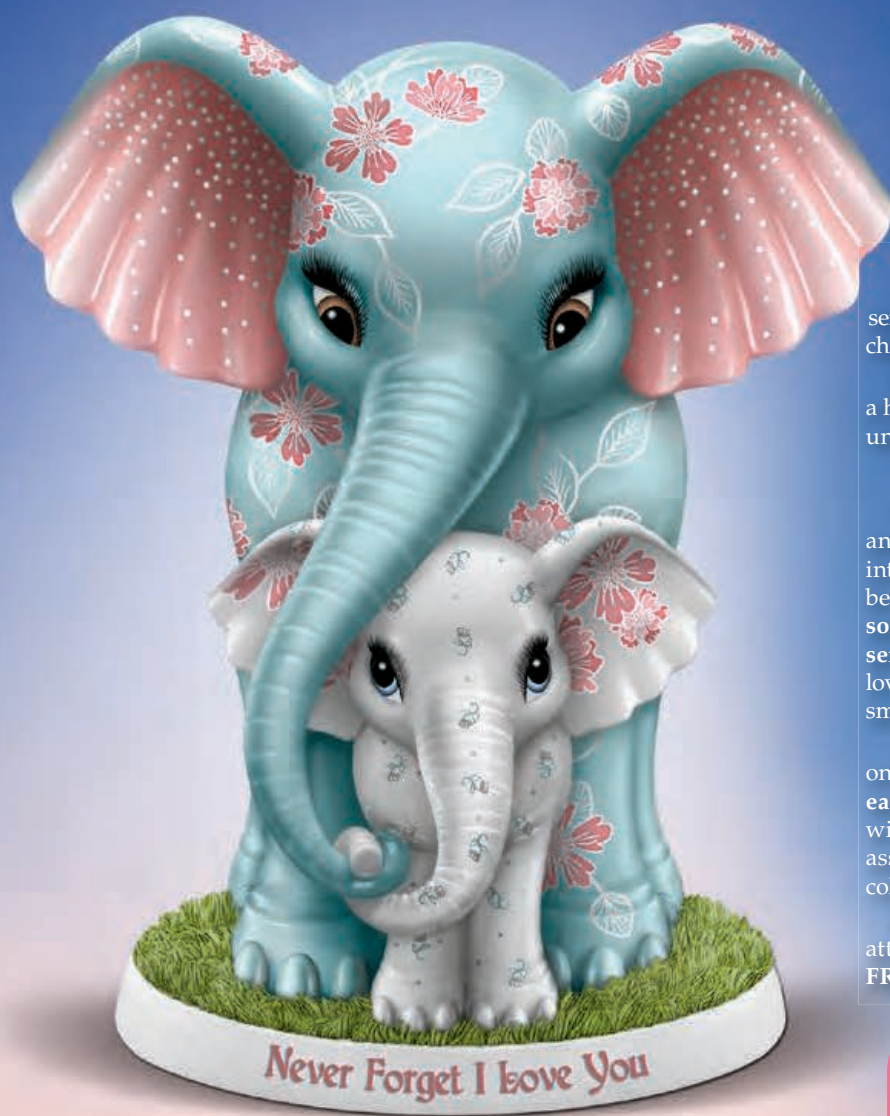

YANKED!: Recently Canceled Shows

Let's see Mac improvise his way out of this one. CBS gave MacGyver the hook after five seasons. ... Starz smote Neil Gaiman's American Gods after three seasons. ... After two seasons, FOX is bidding goodbye to animated comedy Bless the Harts. The series finale is June 20. ... There are (approximately) 1 million game shows returning this summer, but ABC's Don't won't be one of them. ... FX's action comedy series Mr Inbetween will end after its current third season. ... FOX yanked The Moodys off its schedule midway through Season 2. No word on if/when the remaining episodes will air. ... The final season of Netflix's animated fantasy Castlevania dropped last month.

SUMMER OF SECRETS

New Series & Six Original Lifetime Films All Inspired By True Stories. By Barb Oates

Rizzoli & Isles star Angie Harmon to host

CELLMATE SECRETS

Lifetime, Fridays beginning June 4

Uh-oh, the tea is about to be spilled. Lifetime's new six-episode documentary series is like the TMZ of true crime, as it tracks down former friends, prison guards, cellmates and lovers of some of the most famed felons and defendants of today to reveal new insights and information about them.

Casey Anthony. Drew Peterson. Joyce Mitchell. Jodi Arias. All of their stories are told in a new light, along with an enhanced re-airing of the Lifetime original movies that followed their true stories. Rizzoli & Isles' where the stories catch you up on lives following their court case and, if applicable, take you behind bars.

"To me it's like this sort of whole other level — kind of an underbelly, if you will — of what they've been doing since they were put away," Harmon explains. "These are people who have spent time with them, and people who sort of almost are bewitched and entranced with these people. Every single [episode] is a crazy, kind of dramatic ending. It's all this stuff that you didn't really know during the case, because it's all happened afterward."

"My jaw drops on just the narcissistic sociopath that exists in these episodes and how they are just completely and totally void of any emotion or of consequence or holding themselves accountable," Harmon concludes. "Second to that, you have these people who are just sort of like entranced by [these criminals]. And that in itself is just as equally jawdropping because you know that someone murdered her child and put her in a suitcase and got away with it. I mean, sorry, call me old-fashioned, but I don't want to be friends with them. I'm good. Nope. No, thanks."

Angie Harmon narrates the series and couldn't be happier with her new gig.

"I've always been a really diehard fan of shows like 48 Hours and Dateline. They're fascinating. They always feel like the inside scoop on whatever topic or crime that they're focusing on. When I was actually pregnant with my third child, I was super sick. I just watched these shows all of the time, and I loved them," Harmon shares. "I don't know why. I think it just kind of goes with the characters that I seem to be attracted to and get cast playing. And now it's doubly fascinating for me because it's after the crime and what these people have been doing in prison, who they've become friends with and then what these friends now say about them."

LEFT FOR DEAD: THE ASHLEY REEVES STORY

Lifetime, Saturday, June 12

Starring: Jennie Garth (Beverly Hills, 90210), Anwen O'Driscoll (Burden of Truth)

The Real Story That Inspired The Film: In April 2006, 17-year-old Ashley Reeves and 26-year-old Samson Shelton, a teacher in her community, were involved in an altercation, and Reeves was left for dead in the woods. After spending 30 horrific hours in the cold, gravely wounded, lying in the dirt, Ashley was found alive by the police. Her injuries were so severe that she had to relearn how to swallow, talk and move her head and arms. Shelton was sentenced to 20 years in prison for attempted first-degree murder.

Just reading about Ashley's story brings out so many emotions – what was your initial reaction when you read through the script and learned more about her story?

Jennie Garth: It shook me for sure. The fact that I have three teenage daughters just made it way too close to home, and impossible to turn away from.

Tell us about your character and her journey in this film. What was this like through a mother's eyes?

I play Michelle Reeves, Ashley's mother. In the beginning of the movie, the mother/daughter relationship is going through what most mother/daughter relationships go through ... change. So right out of the gate Michelle is struggling to get a hold of her place in Ashley's life at this moment. I could very much relate to that transition and the challenges a mother faces with that. I could also relate to Ashley's position, remembering my own need for autonomy from my mom. Then the tragedy happens and really turns all their worlds upside down. The instincts to protect, defend and fix your child's problems drives everything Michelle does in the film.

How much more emotional and/or more sensitive are you to playing a role like this where the material is inspired by real events and real people?

It always sort of ups the stakes. I always want to represent the person's story as accurately and sensitively as I possibly can. I've had the opportunity to represent quite a few real-life stories over the course of my career. Those stories are often the most unbelievable and compelling. But I'd have to say as an actor my job is to bring that same commitment to any role I play, whether a real-life depiction or a completely fictional plot.

I once heard that every project leaves an actor with something – what did this role leave you with?

It left me feeling grateful and inspired for sure. I hope that the people who see this movie feel inspired, too. Inspired to love unconditionally and to never stop fighting for justice and truth.

The Manhattan district attorney's office said in a statement, "There is nothing glamorous about prostitution. Anna Gristina rented women's bodies for profit, which makes her a pimp. That also makes her a felon, and the court has now issued that judgment. She has no one to blame but herself for her decisions."

THE CELEBRITY DATING GAME

Hello, Beautiful!

Michael Bolton Hosts And Catches Us Up On The Revised
Game Show. By Michael Maloney

The Celebrity
Dating Game
ABC,
Mondays
beginning
June 14

If you've ever wanted to date a celebrity, now's your chance to find out what that might be like. ABC is bringing us The Celebrity Dating Game, a star-studded version of the original game show The Dating Game, hosted by Jim Lange, which ran from 1965 to 1986.

This new version, which features two celebrities per episode looking to find a date, is hosted by Grammy winner Michael Bolton ("How Am I Supposed to Live Without You") and actress and singer-songwriter Zoey Deschanel (New Girl). The series offers a fun look at dating in the modern world, featuring celebrity singles from the world of entertainment as they search for romance and compatibility.

This celebrity version is a bit different from the original program, as it plays on Bolton's musical talents. He'll sing clues as to who the celebrities are. Bolton will do this by performing some of his well-known hits, substituting key lyrics that serve as hints to the celebrity's identity. Bolton, who also serves as the show's executive producer, chatted with us, offering a preview of the show.

You've got to have a pretty good sense of humor to parody your own songs.

Michael Bolton: My manager and I had been pitching and developing shows since the Jack Sparrow [music video] viral experience [on Saturday Night Live], which was ginormous. When this show came along, I thought, "How can I have fun with it?" The thing is — it has to be funny. If it's not, I go back and say, "I'm not feeling this one." The team at ABC and Sony are great to work with. I don't want to jinx this, but there hasn't been one negative aspect to this show.

Can you give an example of a lyric that is adjusted for the show?

Yes. In the case of Hannah Brown [The Bachelorette, Dancing With the Stars], I used part of the song "I Found Someone," which I had written for Cher. That was an important song in my career. It took a little while to get used to a lyric change ... "I found someone ... she's from Tuscaloosa ..."

What's it like working with Zooey?

I knew her work from New Girl and was a fan. She's so adorable and cute, and she's also really in control of her craft and her work. In a lot of ways, she's doing the heavy lifting on the hosting while I'm singing and chiming in during the dialogue. She's got a lot of responsibility, but she handles it all so seemingly effortlessly. She lights up the stage.

The original Dating Game had contestants who went on to become big stars including Steve Martin, Arnold Schwarzenegger, Farrah Fawcett and John Ritter. Are there any familiar faces in the pool of contenders?

I don't know about that tweak of the show. It's kind of cool that there's one celebrity that everyone knows and the other people [aka the contenders] are civilians. We might start getting calls from agents and managers [for future seasons] who think this show would be good for their clients.

The celebrities and contestants won't be able to see each other during questioning — which should make the choices interesting as many tend to go for physical appearance.

Yes. This is interesting because we have some sincere people who want a great person in their life. Sometimes, a celebrity picks somebody and I'm like, "Ahhh ... maybe they didn't hear that last answer well enough?"

Dwyane Wade Presides Over New High-Stakes, High-Pressure Game Show.

By Ryan A. Berenz

Dwyane Wade

"I'm not here to make friends," declares the cold, robotic voice of the Cube. "To defeat me, you need nerves of steel." And maybe a little assist from former NBA star Dwyane Wade.

Wade is the host, executive producer and occasional participant in The Cube, a game show format imported from the U.K. making its stateside debut on TBS. Teams of two face challenges of nerve and skill inside a box of glass, steel and dazzling lights (the aforementioned Cube) with the ultimate goal of winning a $250,000 jackpot. Each team gets nine attempts at completing seven games with incrementally increasing prize value. If the contestants get stuck at some point, they can call D-Wade off the bench and into the Cube for a "One Shot" try at winning that particular game.

"As a former athlete, I enjoy competition and I appreciate the skill set needed to compete in high-tension and fast-paced environments," Wade says. "As executive producer and host, I'm looking forward to teaming up with contestants to embark on a quest that is both physical and mental, as well as adding my own flavor to the show that will make this a fun family viewing event."

CRIME SCENE KITCHEN

Let Him Eat Cake!
Joel McHale Hosts A Carnival Of Carbs.

By Ryan A. Berenz

You've heard of deconstructed cake – but how about reconstructed cake?

FOX's Crime Scene Kitchen puts a twist on the baking competition show. In each episode, a dessert item has been stolen, and it's up to 12 pairs of bakers to become forensic scientists and figure out what dessert was made based on the crumbs, flour trails, stuff stuck on a whisk and a few other hidden clues left in the kitchen. The teams must re-create the dessert to the best of their abilities and have the final product judged by cake expert Yolanda Gampp and chef Curtis Stone. The team that survives all the eliminations wins a $100,000 prize.

Actor, comedian and proudly self-professed food snob Joel McHale has the enviable duty of hosting the show and sampling the goods.

"We're eating cake all day that is freshly made by world-class bakers," McHale says. "It's a bonanza, and the poor crew is looking at it and salivating onto their eyepieces. The Crime Scene Kitchen just smells like a bakery, and it's wonderful."

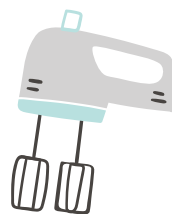

Sure, rub it in. "I don't know much about cakes, because I'm afraid if I learn too much then I'll just start eating them endlessly," McHale says. "Some of the things they're coming up with are incredible, and some of the disasters are also spectacular. It's a whole spectrum of success and failure, and the agony of defeated pound cake."

A team's success or failure is determined by two experts with finely tuned taste buds. "You've got Yolanda Gampp, who's like a freakin' computer," McHale says. "She's a cake lady and she's just incredible. She knows so much that it kind of scares me. She started out with a YouTube channel and now she has an empire. And of course, the world-famous Curtis Stone. He knows so much about food in general – and not just cakes and desserts and puddings and all that. He knows about everything, and he knows the business really well."

If Gampp and Stone aren't sweet on something, they'll make it known. "They're not pulling any punches," McHale says. "Sometimes they'll say something like, 'And the crust density wasn't the same, wasn't uniform.' And I'm like, 'I'm fine with it. It's very delicious. Don't worry about it. I don't care about crust density.' That's what I do."

All the ingredients whip up into one tasty TV soufflé. "There are tears, and there's a lot of sweat and people are freaking out," McHale says. "It's great. It's good television. And also I've been eating way too many carbohydrates."

A Small Town Fights Back Against Big Business. By Taylor Neumann

MEERKAT MANOR: RISE OF THE DYNASTY

A New Installment Of The Cult-Favorite
Natural History Series. By Jeff Pfeiffer

Meerkats, those members of the mongoose family living in the Kalahari Desert of southern Africa, are endearingly cute in both their physical appearance and in the intricate social interactions and hierarchies among their clans. So it is no surprise they have gained fans through their depictions in popular forms of entertainment that have likely introduced many to these delightful and interesting animals. One of the first and best known pop-culture meerkats was the fictional Timon, the beloved character who became part of Disney's animated The Lion King franchise starting with the 1994 feature film.

On a more realistic front, the Emmy-nominated 2005-08 British natural history series Meerkat Manor (which aired here in the States on Animal Planet) mesmerized many viewers as it followed several real-life meerkat groups – primarily a clan called the Whiskers, led by a matriarch dubbed Flower – that were being studied by scientists in the Kalahari at the time. The behavior of meerkats captured on film for that series – accompanied by dramatic narration read by noted actors (Bill Nighy in the U.K., Sean Astin and Stockard Channing in the U.S.) – proved a compelling, informative and entertaining watch that combined science and soap opera.

Captivated viewers soon became emotionally invested in the various “characters” of this meerkat world. On display at every turn was life and death (dry eyes were scarce when Flower died from a snakebite in Season 3 and was succeeded by her daughter Rocket Dog), romance and heartbreak, humor and more intra- and inter-family drama and power struggles than one might find in Game of Thrones or The Sopranos.

More of that is on hand this month when Meerkat Manor: Rise of the Dynasty debuts as the latest installment in the franchise. Airing Saturdays as part of BBC America's Wonderstruck natural history programming block, with Nighy returning to narrate, the half-hour series continues the dramatic saga of survival, this time revolving around three families of meerkats that are descendants of the legendary Flower. As with previous seasons, there will be a narrative, and specific meerkat characters, that viewers will follow over the course of the episodes. So get ready to pick your favorite, and perhaps gear up to again have your heartstrings tugged by the big emotions these little creatures can evoke.

WHEN NATURE CALLS

Animals Say The Darndest Things
In ABC's Wildlife
Comedy.

By Ryan A. Berenz

They sing! They dance! They tell jokes! ABC's new hourlong comedy When Nature Calls puts words in the mouths and beaks of creatures great and small from every corner of the animal kingdom. The family-friendly series, based on the format of BBC's Walk on the Wild Side, takes fascinating footage from nature documentaries and adds voice-overs from comedians and actors. As the animals go about their daily lives, they're transformed into game show hosts, pro athletes and pop-music superstars. For example, in Walk on the Wild Side, a puffy-cheeked chipmunk furiously nibbling on a seed becomes a beat-boxing maestro. A winding caravan of shrews running nose-to-tail turns into a forest-floor conga line. Crabs scurrying across the beach get a horse-racing “And they're off!” play-by-play call. And a red-capped manakin bird does his moonwalk-style mating dance to Michael Jackson's “Billie Jean.”

This Is No "Schitt's Creek"

KEVIN CAN @#$$% HIMSELF

A Sitcom Wife Goes Over To The Dark Side. By Taylor Neumann

Housewives have found themselves immortalized in television for decades, harkening back to the days of Lucille Ball and June Cleaver. But AMC is bringing an entirely new twist to the portrayal of these domestic women with its new series Kevin Can @#$$% Himself, the name a nod to Kevin Can Wait, the Kevin James-led sitcom that exemplifies the kind of wife this new show is trying to subvert: long-suffering, genial, subservient. Kevin Can @#$$% Himself's lead woman is none of those things, trying to break out of this shell of a marriage that has held her captive for so long.

The lead role of Allison is played by Annie Murphy, an Emmy winner for the beloved series Schitt's Creek. This new character couldn't be further from that one. "I think a big thing for me after Schitt's Creek was I was so worried that I was going to kind of get stuck in this blond loopy land. And so I really, really wanted to do something significantly different," said Murphy. "And so, Kevin Can @#$$% Himself came along, which is like an absolute 180. And I get to do things like kick over a garbage can angrily and fry an egg angrily. And, you know, do cocaine in an alleyway angrily. ... Plus, the fact that it was created by a woman and it's such a female-heavy cast and crew. And so, I was begging to be signed up for it."

The show uses a unique style of shooting to portray the two worlds, with sitcom-favored multi-camera — focusing primarily on the men — for some of the episode and the more intimate single-camera, focusing on the inner workings of the ladies, for the rest. For the multi-camera parts, an audience was brought in to provide the laugh track. "I do remember feeling pretty bad at my job because the way the show works is, actually, the two women who inhabit Kevin's universe in the sitcom, we weren't getting the laughs, and it's on purpose," commented star Mary Hollis Inboden, who plays Allison's neighbor, Patty. "I was like, [the men] are getting so many laughs, and, in fact, that's what the show is sort of about — it's Kevin's world and we're all just living in it."

The makeup, the pyrotechnics, the blood spitting and their over-the-top antics are all a part of the hard-rock band's business genius, but it's their music that made them iconic. KISS has sold more than 100 million albums worldwide and enjoyed over 40 years of record-breaking global tours.

The Beginning The Early Road To The Hall Of Fame

1972

Gene Simmons and Paul Stanley were originally part of a New York-based rock band named Wicked Lester. They weren't happy with the band, so they quit and started fresh, bringing Peter Criss aboard as the drummer.

1973

Guitarist Ace Frehley joined the group and they named the band KISS. Later that year, the band played a concert at the Academy of Music in New York City, where Simmons set his hair ablaze while performing his "newly inaugurated fire-breathing stunt."

1974

This year marked many firsts including the band's first North American tour (primarily in Canada) and their first national television appearance on ABC's In Concert. The band also released their first two albums — their self-titled album KISS and Hotter Than Hell.

1975

Michigan's Cadillac High football team won the state championship and credited listening to KISS before every game. The town went berserk and celebrated KISS Day (Oct. 9). A month later the KISS Army (their fan club) was formed. By the end of the year, KISS received their first Gold Record Award and first Top 40 single. Dressed to Kill was released, which included the megahit "Rock and Roll All Nite," and they followed that up with KISS Alive!

1976

Destroyer, one of the band's most commercially successful studio albums, was released and included favorites like "Detroit Rock City," "Shout It Out Loud," "God of Thunder" and "Flaming Youth," along with their touching B-side ballad "Beth." One more album would follow that year with Rock and Roll Over.

1977

KISS took on Madison Square Garden for the first time. The band was presented with a Best Song People's Choice Award for

"Beth." Their Japan tour broke attendance records previously held by the Beatles. Alive II was released and eventually hit multiplatinum.

1978

NBC premiered KISS Meets Phantom of the Park, which became one of the network's highest-rated TV movies of the year. All four band members released solo albums.

The band released Dynasty, which included the worldwide hit "I Was Made for Lovin' You."

When Wonder Woman hit the big screen in 2017 to international blockbuster success, it had a meaningful impact on certain viewers, with its hero, Diana – as embodied by star Gal Gadot – instantly becoming an influential role model to girls and young women around the world and inspiring them to unabashedly embrace their own strengths, abilities and powers to do good.

“With great power comes great responsibility” is a familiar theme in superhero tales, and Gadot has embraced this adage, not just through her onscreen character, but also in her capacity as one of the world’s most recognizable actresses and producers. Realizing the impact she could continue to have on those who have been inspired by her character, Gadot has been using the offscreen superpower of her celebrity to further recognize and encourage them.

This month on Nat Geo, you’ll see an especially notable way the actress has been doing this in the documentary IMPACT With Gal Gadot. This film, on which Gadot is an executive producer, is a full-length collection of six short-form documentaries that aired on the network’s YouTube channel earlier this year, each one with an introduction by Gadot and chronicling the powerful story of a woman making an extraordinary impact on her community. The women featured in each story come from very different backgrounds – across Brazil, Puerto Rico, Michigan, California, Louisiana and Tennessee – yet they are all connected by their commitment to improving the lives of the people around them.

“After [I did] Wonder Woman,” Gadot says, “I felt like I had such a big reach to people, and I just wanted to do something good, to use my reach and my platforms to shed light on these amazing, incredible women’s stories [and] maybe ignite something in them and create a movement of people that just want to do good to the world.”

“I think that with all these women [in IMPACT], what we can see is that all of them come from difficult circumstances, whether it’s violence, poverty, trauma, discrimination, natural disasters. And yet, it fuels them. It gives them more power to dare, to dream, to change, to speak up and to really make a change in their communities.”

That change comes in the form of everything from a 20-year-old figure skating coach empowering young Black girls on and off the ice in Detroit; to a 19-year-old Puerto Rican woman leading a team of college students whose invention of a water filtration system is finally giving residents clean drinking water in the wake of Hurricane Maria in 2017; to a 23-year-old ballet dancer running a dance company for young girls in the middle of one of Rio de Janeiro’s most dangerous favelas; and more.

“I keep on calling them my Women of Wonder,” Gadot says of the subjects featured in IMPACT, “because they are the true heroes. I go to set, and I get dressed, and I get my costume and sword and everything, and I fight, but [it’s] make-believe. They actually are there on the ground, sweating and doing all they can to really make the world a better place.”

LEGO MASTERS

A New Batch Of Builders Hit The Bricks For Season 2.

By Ryan A. Berenz

Get ready for more un-bricking-believable creations in Season 2 of FOX's LEGO Masters competition series, as 12 teams of two talented builders vie for a $100,000 cash prize, the LEGO trophy and the grand title of LEGO Masters.

Season 1's builds featured jaw-dropping movie scenes, fairy tale fantasy worlds, bridges that could support in upward of 1,000 pounds and structures that looked cool exploding on super-slow-motion video. This season, contestants will take on even more ambitious challenges, like an earthquake-resistant tower, a demolition derby and a LEGO fashion show.

It takes a lot of imagination and ingenuity to impress host Will Arnett and Brickmaster judges Amy Corbett and Jamie Berard. Contestants learned last season that being a LEGO Master requires more than just architectural know-how.

"We're looking for dynamic teams of two – relatable, inspiring partners who also have incredible LEGO brick building skills," says Allison Kaz, LEGO Masters head of casting and talent. "There's a technical side to it, a creative side to it, and then there's the personality aspect of it."

It's not how many bricks you have, but what you're able to do with them, that counts. "The ingenuity and artistry that goes into these builds, even on a very small level, is incredible," Kaz says. "Even for fans who maybe don't follow LEGO or don't build with bricks themselves, when you see these incredible designs that some of these contestants have done, it really does inspire you to take your creativity to the next level."

Lowe says. "But unfortunately, what I've found is the more uncomfortable it is to shoot, the better it looks on camera."

- Being a bad influence on James Spader in Bad Influence
- Ordering Chinese food in Cantonese in Wayne's World

"I'm going to go with being a bad guy with James Spader for 1, ordering Cantonese food in Wayne's World for 2, followed up by saving Denver in Atomic Train."

Which was better?

- Sporting the mustache as Drew Peterson in Drew Peterson: Untouchable
- Playing the saxophone in St. Elmo's Fire

"That's a very difficult choice. I never had more fun than playing Drew Peterson because I don't think I've ever played a character less like me or that looked less like me. So that was a deep dive. But let's face it, a lot of people still remember my saxophone solo with that yellow bat tank top, so I think St. Elmo's Fire is going to eke it out."

Other Returning Game Shows

Lowe's job as host of Mental Samurai is far cushier. The pressure is on the contestants to answer questions and solve puzzles while being spun around the arena by "Ava," a high-speed, rotating capsule attached to a robotic arm. After a long hiatus, the quiz show/thrill ride is back for Season 2, and we put Lowe to the test with our questions:

How did you manage to shoot Mental Samurai between the pandemic and 9-1-1: Lone Star?

Rob Lowe: We had to shoot Mental Samurai when I was available, and that coincided with the first big outbreak of COVID-19. We literally could not shoot anywhere in the United States for health and safety reasons, and insurance reasons. The only place in the world that was open to shoot and had the protocols in place to make it safe was Portugal. And I'd never been. It was a great excuse to go. We imported all of our contestants from America. We just moved the entire production over there, and it was surreal and wonderful.

Did you have to import Ava, too?

They have their own Ava. One of the things that's so cool about Mental Samurai is that it's been a big hit all around the world, and various countries have their own iterations of it. We have our Ava here, there's an Ava over there. I think the one over there is a little nicer than our Ava. I think she enjoys that amazing Portuguese food. It was just a really easy thing to borrow their equipment.

How often have you taken Ava for a ride?

I make sure I hop in there quite often. I love adrenaline. I make them turn Ava up to a level that we wouldn't dare put our contestants in. If we wanted to, we could make anybody pass out almost instantly. The G's that we can pull on Ava – it was designed to test astronauts and fighter pilots. If we cranked it up to her full potential, our contestants would black out. I don't go that far, but I like to go close.

Is there a part of the course that always seems to stump you?

That's the great thing about the show. No matter how smart you are, you're going to have a weakness somewhere, and this course will find it and exploit it. And that's why only the best get to be a Mental Samurai. For me, I always have a particularly hard time on the puzzles. That would be the one that I hope I'd never land in front of, but of course you have to get through that tower to get to the end.

Anyone For Tennis?

June Serves Up Grand
Slam Action In England
And France. By Ryan A. Berenz

With some order restored to the Grand Slam tennis season, here are the top stories we're watching as court is in session at the French Open and Wimbledon:

Late To The Game France endured a third wave of coronavirus infections and another lockdown this spring, forcing organizers to delay this year's French Open by one week. The tournament now takes place May 30-June 13 on Tennis Channel and NBC.

Rafa's Reign Spanish superstar Rafael Nadal continued his conquest of the red clay at Roland Garros, winning his 13th French Open and tying Roger Federer's record of 20 Grand Slam titles. He'll be the favorite again, but world No. 1 and Australian Open champ Novak Djokovic will be hungry for a finals rematch with Rafa.

French Fluke? Iga Świątek captured the 2020 French Open women's singles title, becoming Poland's first Grand Slam winner. The unseeded Świątek was No. 54 in the WTA rankings, but the 19-year-old tore through the tournament without dropping a set. The pressure is on to prove she's more than a one-hit wonder.

Roger's Return Swiss great Federer confirmed he'll play at Roland Garros for his first Grand Slam tournament since the 2020 Australian Open. The 39-year-old Federer has been recovering from two surgeries on his right knee, and missed the Australian Open earlier this year. His lone win at the French Open came in 2009.

No Sunset For Serena After a tough loss to Naomi Osaka in the Australian Open semifinals in February, many wondered if Serena Williams, the 39-year-old winner of 23 Grand Slams, was ready to retire. In Melbourne, Williams played some of her best tennis since becoming a mom. Her tennis future could hinge on her Paris performance.

Osaka On The Rise With two US Open and two Australian Open titles to her name, it's just a matter of time before 23-year-old Japanese phenom Osaka breaks through with a win in the European majors. She's dominant on the hardcourt, but is only 6-4 in matches on Roland Garros' clay and 4-3 on Wimbledon's grass.

Centre Court Comeback Wimbledon was canceled outright in 2020, but the prestigious tournament returns to the calendar this year and the All England Club anticipates spectator capacity to be at 25%. The French Open delay means there will be a shorter grass court season building up to Wimbledon. In 2019, Djokovic successfully defended his title in an epic final match against Federer that lasted nearly five hours. On the ladies' side, Romania's Simona Halep needed less than an hour to defeat Serena Williams in the final. It was Williams' second straight runner-up finish at Wimbledon. ESPN and ESPN2 air this year's tournament June 28-July 11.

CRITIC PICK OF THE MONTH

Make It A Movie Night!

Revenge films have always dotted the movie landscape. While some films do not connect with the common audience member, Nobody does and it is because of Bob Odenkirk. Set up as a man who just wants to live his life, no matter how mundane, he transforms into the man that he had stored away. It's Odenkirk's style and attitude that connect with viewers and make Nobody stand out from the crowd. There is definitely someone on the other end of the chaos. Odenkirk is fighting for all of us.

It's my pick of the month.

Paul Hall is a nationally syndicated film critic and member of the Critics Choice Association (CCA).

Nobody

(Action) Sometimes the quiet and unassuming guy is the one you really need to watch out for in life. A man just trying to start over has his past come back to life, and when it does, bad guys everywhere need to look out. Bob Odenkirk, Connie Nielsen, Christopher Lloyd (R, 1:32) Available Now
